SONORA SIFTINGS.

Collection of Happenings in the State
Over the Line.

On the 24th inst. a grand fiesta to last several days will be given at Santa Ana.

Mr. H. W. Ryder of Woodland, California, one of the directors of the Yolo Mining Co., is visiting Sonora, and is now at Baviacora, the scene of the company's operations.

Wednesday Mr. J. E. McLellan, the youthful hustler who represents the Singer Sewing Machine Co. at Guaymas, visited Ortiz and found ready sale for several new machines.

Mr. Thos. Grigsby, superintendent of El Triunfo mines in Lower California, is expected to visit Sonora in the near future, with a view to looking over the mining outlook in this state.

On Tuesday the Mexican flag was displayed from the custom house, consulate, and other public buildings and many private residences, in honor of the defeat of the filibuster, Count Roussel, at Guaymas in 1854.

It is currently reported that every ton of copper bullion of the Santa Rosalia copper mines in Lower California, now going through the United States in bond, contains no less than $60 worth of gold, some silver and a goodly per centage of lead.

The Boleo Co. are said to be erecting heavy reduction works upon another very rich copper property further down the gulfoast of Lower California, purchased by the corporation from the same prospector who discovered the mines now in operation at Santa Rosalia.

From Lower California there comes information that at Santa Rosalia a new addition to the town is being built by the Boleo Co., which will be a very pretty place, the houses all well built, the streets well laid out, lighted by electricity and enjoying other modern improvements. The new town will be the future residence of the officials and European employees of the company.

Mr. E. J. Murray of San Francisco, stone time manager of far famed Trinidad mine, of Sonora, is the new superintendent of the Santa Rosalia mine, and took charge of the property last month. A new five-stamp mill is to be erected upon the property at once, and the machinery is en route, passing the Mexican custom house at Nogales this week.

At Guaymas the Thirtieth of July, the anniversary of the defeat of Count Rassolet, the French filibuster who made a descent upon the town in 1854, was celebrated with the usual marked display of rejoicing. At the Hotel Almada a grand ball was given on the evening of the 12th, and on the evening of the 13th there was a general illumination with a very fine display of fireworks at the plaza.

Intelligence from Lower California conveys the information that at La Paz a concerted effort for development of artesian water is under way. A large fund has been subscribed to be expended in the good work, a contract, embracing important concessions, has been let to an expert well borer, the necessary machinery has been ordered and work will begin as soon as it arrives. Several wells will be sunk, and if successful the water thus realized will make of La Paz and the surrounding country a veritable paradise. The project is believed entirely feasible, as the rainfall in the mountains in the interior of the peninsula is very heavy (about forty inches annually,) and most of it sinks below the surface to great depths. All deep mines have a heavy water-flow to contend with. Should a well reach the underground flow it would doubtless prove a spurter of great value, and a few of them would irrigate a goodly area of land.

La Civilizacion, of Hermosillo, states that the agents of the colonization company of the Yaqui have received definite information that the Cherokees and Delaware Indians of the Indian Territory, in the United States, who have been negotiating to purchase the canal and lands of the Sonora & Sinaloa Irrigation Co., on the lower Yaqui, will move from their present location to their new home in October. They will bring more than one thousand head of fine cattle, which they will cross with the native cattle with the object of raising a breed peculiar to the country. One of the Cherokees who visited the Yaqui is quoted as saying that they could not find a better climate than that of the Yaqui region, and he expressed an opinion that with the new immigration that region will in five years become one of the most important centers of population in the republic. The capital of the Cherokees to be devoted to cattle raising is stated to be not less than $500,000, which will enable them to raise that business to the greatest importance.

Alleged Violation of the Edmunds Act.

Monday United States Court Commissioner Duffy held court to try the case of Jesus Espinosa and Ramona Tajo, against whom complaint had been made for living together in defiance of the Edmunds Act, the complainant being a brother of the girl. Espinosa was in court, but the girl was missing and the complaining witness alleged that she had been spirited across the line, without the jurisdiction of the court, by Espinosa. The complainant was given a little time to bring in some witnesses, and armed with the necessary subpoenas, in the hands of an officer, he went out and brought in two men. The first denied all knowledge. The other testified that he knew Espinosa and the girl at Cerro Blanco, Sonora, and that they came up from there about a month ago, and had since been living together in Nogales, Arizona. The complaining witness testified that Espinosa had brought the girl from Cerro Blanco promising to marry her here, but had not carried out his promise. A sister of Espinosa testified that the girl had been at her house working and had gone away immediately after arising in the morning.

Espinosa denied strenuously all knowledge of the whereabouts of the girl, and also denied that he had been guilty of any violation of law with her.

The court decided to hold the accused until the girl is found, to which Espinosa demurred, saying that should the girl not appear in twenty or twenty-five years the ruling of the court would subject him to incarceration that length of time. The court hinted that should the accused drop his brother a hint the girl could be quickly produced.

Afterward Espinosa and his sister both testified that the girl was working for her for $8 per month. On that showing the accused was discharged.

Railroad Accident—Negligence.

The Supreme Court of Indiana held, in the case of The Louisville, North Albany & Chicago Railroad Company vs. Heck, that where a railroad company sent an extra train over a part of its track on which a work train had been ordered to be operated, without complying with its own rules to give the trainmen notice of the work train's operations, such action was negligence which made the company liable for injuries caused by resulting collision between the two extra trains; that a master is liable for the joint negligence of himself and a coemployee of the person injured, and that a train dispatcher acts as a vice-principal in giving orders for the movement of trains, and is not a fellow servant of the trainmen and workmen controlled by his orders.—Bradstreet's.
